Liang's rich and compelling paintings of Native American culture and tradition clearly resonate with collectors who find depth and quality in his storytelling narratives. His penchant for detail combined with the historical and narrative elements of his paintings have firmly established him among the ranks of the finest western representational painters in the country today. With each painting, whether a complex, historical subject matter with multiple figures or a simple, elegant portrait, his meticulous research and dedication is clearly evident, giving his work passions and authenticity. Recent awards include the 2011 Masters of the American West Purchase Award and the 2009 David P Usher Patrons' Choice Award at the Autry's Masters of the American West Fine Art Exhibition and Sale.
